

Learn More Center Receives Matching Grant Challenge Offer

The Learn More Center is thrilled to announce a $30,000 matching challenge grant offer for 2012 by an anonymous donor.

This grant will be awarded on a $1 for $1 matching basis through Dec. 31, 2012, and will help raise funds to operate Learn More Center, which provides literacy and adult basic education in Wabash County.

"We are honored to receive this challenge grant for a fifth year, and are very appreciative to the anonymous donor who supports the work of the Learn More Center," said Learn More Center President Sally Krouse.

"This year's grant is a little different," says Director of Education Cynthia Johnson. "The anonymous donor has asked that a certain portion of the grant be from brand new donors. We are asking individuals who appreciate the Learn More Center to show their support by donating for the first time this year."

The U.S. Census Bureau conducted a survey in 2010 that showed Wabash County losing more than 2,000 unskilled jobs, which leaves one in three residents not earning enough to be self-sufficient.

Poverty has increased in the county by 30% since 2007, and over one fifth of our children live in households below the poverty line. "That's why the work of the Learn More Center is necessary," says Johnson.
